DEMOCRATIC HOSTS IN CONVENTION ASSEMBLED.

Nominate a Clean, Sober, Conservative Ticket From Top to Bottom.

ENTHUSIASTIC BODY OF DEMOCRATIC VOTERS.

C. Vic Robertson, of Glendean

Democratic Nominee for County Clerk. He will turn the Key to Success for Democratic Party of Breckenridge

THE TICKET.

For County Court Clerk—C. Vic Robertson.
For County Judge—Matthias Miller.
For Circuit Clerk—Lee Walls.
For County Attorney—V. G. Babbage.
For Sheriff—H. G. Vessels.
For Superintendent of Schools—Joe W. Trent.
For Jailer—Henry Gilbert.
For Assessor—Peyton Claycomb.
For Coroner—Lee Bishop.
For Representative—Hon. D. C. Moorman.

A large and enthusiastic body of Democrats met in Mass Convention at Harboursburg Monday to nominate candidates for the various county offices to be held next November. The convention opened promptly at 1:30 p. m., and was called to order by Chairman Thos. J. Moore.

In calling the convention together, Mr. Moore made an eloquent and enthusiastic appeal to his fellow Democrats, gave an account of his stewardship as chairman, promised his loyal support to the ticket to be named, and whoever was named in that convention would be elected next November. Mr. Moore's speech was enthusiastically received and heartily applauded. He read the call and awaited the pleasure of the convention.

James Lightfoot was the first to speak, and said with his pleasure and delight in nominating Mr. Moore for permanent chairman. H. L. Stader seconded the nomination. There being no other nominations Mr. Lightfoot put the question and every man in the house rose by rising to their feet.

chairman who said he was the first and only Norton he presumed, who ever participated in a Democratic convention. He wanted to name a man whom he thought was justly entitled to the nomination and a man who would add strength and votes to the ticket—that man is Finly Miller.

His nomination was seconded by Marshall DeHaven. This was the only contest in the convention, and it was a pretty lively and close one. Mr. DeHaven moved that the chair appoint four tellers to count the vote. The chair named Dr. Spies, Jess Whitworth, Dr. Walker and Mr. Drake.

Mr. Monarch said before the vote was taken that it was the custom to name the deputies on the ticket. He would like to hear them named. Judge Moorman thought it was best to wait and let the deputies be named after the nomination. Judge Murray was of the same opinion. He thought it best to leave it to the man nominated. It would be playing into the hands of the Republicans and give them great advantage to name the deputies now. Incidentally the judge said it was the happiest day of his life. It does my heart good to be here in this good old-time Democratic Convention. We are all here for the good of the party. The Democratic spirit still lives and never will be defeated. Let us proceed in order.

Hon. D. H. Severs had some of the old-time spirit left in him. He was glad to see the people here and taking part in this great convention of Democrats. He was in favor of the people knowing who their deputies would be and thought they ought to be named.

John Alexander was opposed to the deputies being named.

Dr. Board made the point of order that it was not in the province of this convention to name the deputies and asked the chair to rule on his point at once.

Mr. Monarch said it was the custom of Sheriffs in this county to name their deputies and he thought it a good custom. The chairman at this juncture ruled that Dr. Board's point of order was well taken, and that the convention proceed with the vote. The Miller men will please get on the left side of the house and the Vessels men on the right so that the tellers can count the vote.

The first count resulted in 185 and 130 for Vessels, and 141 and 136 for Miller. This count was not satisfactory and a second count was made, resulting in 136 for Vessels and 131 for Miller. This vote satisfied the convention and Mr. Vessels' nomination was made unanimous. This contest was quite spirited and closely contested from every point, but it ended up with the best of feeling.

Mr. Penick in a very happy and appropriate speech put in nomination Joseph W. Trent, of Carter, for Superintendent of Schools. His nomination was unanimous.

William Gilbert was put in nomination for Jailer by two. His nomination went through in a whoop.

Gilbert brought the house down when he accepted the nomination by saying he got his speech out of Vic Robertson's basket. Vic was too full for utterance and so was "Bill."

Peyton Claycomb was the unanimous choice of the convention for Assessor, and Lee Bishop for Coroner.

The convention wanted Henry Matthews for Surveyor, but he declined, saying it was impossible for him to leave home. The County Committee was authorized to name a candidate.

The Hon. D. C. Moorman was named for Representative. He declined to accept the honor, but it is thought that he will accept with a little time to study over the matter.

The convention then adjourned.

DIES AT THE NORTON INFIRMARY

William Gray, of Hancock County, Succumbs to Wounds.

William Gray, a well-known young farmer of Hancock county, Ky., died at the Norton Memorial Infirmary at 11:45 o'clock this morning from bullet wounds which he received Wednesday night in a pistol and knife fight with Ab. Adkins at Havesville, Ky. His father, John Gray, a prominent citizen of Havesville, was at his bedside when he passed away.

The body will probably be taken to Havesville for burial.

Gray was brought to Louisville on Thursday morning for treatment. He was hurried from the depot to the infirmary, where an operation was immediately performed in hopes of saving his life. For the first time it was feared that the wounds would prove fatal. He had three wounds, one in the arm, one through the body under the heart and another penetrating the bowels.

The tragedy occurred on the crowded streets of Havesville on Wednesday night at 11 o'clock, just as the street fair was breaking up for the night. The fight is supposed to have resulted over a quarrel growing out of jealousy over a young woman. Gray used a knife and Adkins a revolver.

In the deadly struggle Adkins received stab wounds about the face and neck. He narrowly escaped bleeding to death. He is now confined at the Havesville jail.—Louisville Times

Kidney Troubles Attack Cloverport Men And Women, Old And Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old. Come quickly with little warning. Children suffer in their early years—Can't control the kidney secretions. Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.

Women worry, can't do daily work. Men have lame and aching backs. The cure for man, woman or child is to cure the cause—the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.

Cure all forms of kidney suffering. The following testimony proves it. Mrs. Ann E. Dittman, 619 Crittenden St., Owensboro, Ky., says: "My son, aged sixteen years, was troubled by weak kidneys. He was compelled to pass the kidney secretions frequently, which was indeed very embarrassing to him. We read of Doan's Kidney Pills and seeing what other people were saying of them, we decided to give them a trial. They have removed the difficulty entirely and he is now in good health."

Correction.

The death of James F. Claycomb was caused from heart trouble as the result of injuries from a fall. It was stated that he died of tuberculosis, which was a mistake.

: "FACE TO FACE" :

Zilpha, beautiful girl, a true friend, a Christian; all these was the precious daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Gilliland.

In the still hour of the morning, Friday at 2 o'clock, Zilpha told her mother and father goodbye. She had been ill of typhoid fever four weeks, but her death was most unexpected. Dr. Lightfoot had been treating her daily and Dr. Simons, too, was called in consultation, however, medical aid proved in vain.

September the fifth she would have been seventeen years of age. Her birth place was near Ekron. Nine years ago her parents came to Breckenridge county to live, but only since Zilpha entered her teens had Cloverport people known her well. Her time

Rev. Hickerson, of ———, a brother of Mrs. Gilliland, held a most strengthening service. His prayer was earnest and comforting.

At 2 o'clock the funeral was conducted by the Rev. James Lewis was sweetly rendered by kind friends. They sang Zilpha's favorite song "Jesus Understands". The members of her Sunday School class, which is taught by Mrs. Chas. Lightfoot, acted as pallbearers. They were: Misses Katie Wroe, Susie Newton, Benita McCracken, Elsie Gregory, Hazel Holder, Minnie Embury, Annie Mabel Kramer, Lottie Matheny, Audrey Perkins, Rachel Jackson, Annie Belle Morrison, Fannie Dean.

The interment took place in the Cloverport cemetery. The grave was to form friendships had been short, but she won them quickly and firmly. Of course she did not escape criticism and often times her dear heart was wounded, but always forgiving she was and her life was filled with love for every one.

In 1907 Zilpha joined the Baptist church and was a faithful worker. She was a member of the Sunday school and of the B. Y. P. U. So hard and genuine was her religion that she would share her time with other denominations and so much had she done for the Epworth League that President James Younger requested the members to attend the funeral in a body as a token of respect to her memory.

Saturday afternoon just before the remains were taken from the home, the

From a distance those who attended the funeral were: Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hickerson, of Ekron; Mr. and Mrs. Lon Neafus, Miss Murdie Neafus and Mrs. Ella Lampkin, of Ekron.

Besides her parents, she leaves one sister, Anita, and two brothers, Wilber and Edison.

To others, Zilpha's life was like one sweet dream. Her beauty from her heart, her voice so soothing, and pure was her heart. To this little queen a crown of life has been given, and her death, only "Jesus Understands."

LOSE CLOSE GAME

RAILROADERS IN A SMASH-UP.

What might have brought joy to a bunch of Cloverport Junior followers of the National game was nipped in the bud last Saturday afternoon.

In other words the Cloverport Junior nine was defeated by their fellow ball tossers from the county seat in a hard fought game on the latters' diamond by the score of 9 to 8.

Tucker and Hoben were the opposing slab artists in Saturday's contest. Both pitchers were hit freely as the score indicates while some good field stunts were pulled off by those who performed in the outer gardens.

The locals had them shut out in the fifth when the Hardinsburg boys took the lead. The locals were again in the lead in the eighth but in the ninth they could not produce the winning tallies. The locals claim that a few raw decisions of the umpire caused them to lose the game.

Railroaders In A Smash-up

A local aggregation of railroaders for an unknown reason because of the opinion last week that they could defeat the regular team. The challenge was accepted. Several warming-up practices were engaged in during the week and the railroaders were confident of victory. Some even talked of a shut-out.

However, such was not the case, and Sunday afternoon after nine innings of a

New Suits

The local team has ordered new light grey suits which are expected to arrive in a few days and will add much to the appearance of the team. The boys are practicing daily and some good games are promised before the season closes.

Card Of Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Gilliland thank their friends for the many acts of kindness shown them and their daughter, Zilpha, during her illness and at her death. They greatly appreciate, more than words can tell, the love and tribute paid her by the members of the B. Y. P. U. and Epworth League.

Bad Backache

Such agonies as some women suffer, every month, from backache!

Is it necessary? No, it can be prevented and relieved, when caused by female trouble, by taking a medicine with specific, curative action, on the female organs and functions, which acts by relieving the congestion, stopping the pain and building the organs and functions up to a proper state of health. Try.

WOMAN'S RELIEF

"I suffered for 15 years," writes Mrs. Malinda A. Akers, of Busham, N. J., "with various female troubles. I had such a backache that it drew me over, so I could not stand straight. The doctors could not help me, so I took Gardol, and now I feel like a new woman."

QUITE FOGGY.

Must Have Been Pretty Thick Back in the Old Days.

"Yaan, it's foggy—quite foggy," said Ezekiah Torpyhue, filling his pipe and puffing vigorously on the stem. "But it ain't nuth' to the fog we had back seventy-nine. By gorry, boys, but that was a fog, an' no mistake! Why I was so thick that when I went out in the barn one mornin' I got my eyes full of fog. I had to get three of the farm hands to come along behind me an' push me through it!"

"Yaan," said Hiram Wigley, the egg king, "that was some fog. I remember that there seventy-nine affair ver, well, but it wasn't a marker alongside of the two we had in seventy-eight when me an' Joe Shilbee had to take a plow to cut our way through to the house, an', by gorry, when we got there we found the house a-castin' on it thick of our nests, an' some of 'em had eggs right on it like as though it was made of hay, b'gosh!"

"Yaan," put in old Grady Snuggs, the village patriarch, "then there two fogs was dandies, an' everything you fellows says about 'em is gospel treth, but for real fog yed oufter been around here back in my young days I tell ye they was sold, them days. Why, we boys used to set on the fence down in front of the little chapel an' make fog balls outen 'em an' peg 'em at people as they went by. Seems to me I ain't seen no fogs since that time that we could make snowballs out of. Have you, Billy?"—Chicago News.

See Mother Grew Young.

"It would be hard to overstate the wonderful change in my mother since she began to use Electric Bitters," writes Mrs. W. L. Gilpatrick, of Danforth, Me. "Although past 70 she seems really to be growing young again. She suffered untold misery from dyspepsia for years. At last she could neither eat, drink nor sleep. Doctors gave her up and all remedies failed till Electric Bitters worked such wonders for her health." They invigorate all vital organs, cure Liver and Kidney troubles, induce sleep, impart strength and appetite. Only 50c at Severs Drug Co.

The Don's Opinion.

Fashion is as inexorable in men's as in women's dress. The undergraduate perhaps the most telling example of this. It was so even a century ago, when Oxford led the way in adopting the new minkie trousers that were to supersede tight breeches and top boots. Just about that period a don of Trinity met an undergraduate arrayed in all the splendor of the new fashion. "Young man," said the don severely, "you will come to no good. You wear minkie trousers and keep a dog." The young man afterward became the Hon. and Bishop of Winchester.—London Chronicle.

NEW TYPE OF ROAD.

Telford Blocks With Liquid Asphalt as a Binder to Be Tried in Jersey.

New Jersey is to experiment with a new type of road, and the experiment will be tried in Essex county, where the county engineer, James Owen, proposes to lay roads in West Orange, Nutley, Belleville, Verona, Short Hills, Millburn, West Caldwell and other places. The state is to pay one-tenth of the cost of these new roads, each municipality one-tenth of the cost of the roads within its limit, and the county pays the balance. Mount Pleasant avenue, West Orange, is to be the first scene of the new road trial. Telford pavement is to be used under a new formula prepared by Mr. Owen, and he thinks that such a road will stand automobile traffic speedily, and, while it will not be absolutely dustless, it will be less dusty than any other form of a similar kind.

After the telford blocks are laid instead of using clay as a binder liquid asphalt will be used. This has been successfully tried as a binder in connection with patent road formula, and while it will add about 15 cents a square yard to the cost, it will be cheaper in the end. The foundation of the road will be constructed in the ordinary way and chinked in the usual manner. Then a coating of stone screenings will be applied and rolled. Next will come a four inch layer of broken stone and another thorough rolling. On top of this will be put this layer of screenings to fill the interstices; then the liquid asphalt will be put on but in the proportion of one and one-third gallons to each square yard of surface. It will then be given a solid, even road, and until the horse-drawn vehicles make it hard it is all right.

What county engineers and other road builders should try to do is to build a road that will stand the horses and the iron road wagons, and after doing that they will have solved the road roads' problem.

The Laborer and His Hire.

At a conference in New York of foreign missions boards reference was made to the increased cost of living of missionaries home on leave, which made it harder for them to get along than if they stayed in their foreign field of labor.

"Why," said the speaker, "a missionary must travel decently, and that reminds me of a story of Mr. Spurgeon and a fellow clergyman. The two were just starting on a railway journey and Mr. Spurgeon's friend showed him a second class ticket.

"See," said he, "what good care I take of the Lord's money."

"See," said Mr. Spurgeon, bringing out a first class ticket, "what good care I take of the Lord's servant."—Youth's Companion.

Road Building to Music.

Major L. W. V. Kennon in building the Benguet road through the mountains of northern Luzon, Philippine Islands, was obliged to study the character of his 4,000 native employees and adopt peculiar methods of developing their efficiency. He found that music was the best incentive to work. He had a band follow the gangs wherever they went and play as the men worked. From laborers worth 10 cents a day he developed the men into musical machines working in cadence with drum beats. Finally in closing up the work he made a wager that the road would be finished by a certain day. He promised a good clear to every laborer if he won the bet. He won.

ROBERT ADAM.

He Created a New Era in English Architecture.

Robert Adam (1728-92) was to English architecture what Bevenuto Cellini was to that of Italy. He was architect to the king, beloved at court, a member of parliament, and it was said of him that he "could not help adorning all that he touched." Those of the English people who dwell in Adam houses prize them as rare jewels.

Adam introduced into English architecture a lightness, delicacy of touch and charm of proportion which had never before been possessed, and which gave his name to that splendid period of architecture the style of which lasted over a century. Everything in a house, from the panel in a ceiling to the vases and gilt wood tripods and branches for lights, from hangings at the windows to a woman's hairpin holder, Adam designed himself.

Adam got his vich, beautiful and distinctive style from the ruins of the Emperor Diocletian at Spalato. As a finish to interiors he conceived the idea of using figures in relief upon walls, colored and adorned according to Raphael's Stance painted flat upon the walls of the Vatican. His idea was as bold as its result was beautiful. He also adopted Pompeian styles of decoration.

"Adam was artist as well as architect, and his walls, ceilings and interior adornments are marvels of harmonious colors," says an architect.

"He employed no less persons than Angelica Kaufmann and Zucchi to paint many of the panels and medallions into his ceilings, and it was his habit to have carpets woven to match the pattern overlaid and harmonize with the color there employed. The keynote of Adam's style is 'movement' combined with perfect artistic fitness, and it is peculiar for its grace and stateliness."—New York Tribune.

MISSIONARY'S WIFE PRAISES CUTICURA

Daughter's Head Encrusted with Dandruff—Feared she Would Lose her Hair—Many Treatments were Futile—Baby had Milk-Crust.

BOTH CHILDREN CURED BY FAMOUS REMEDIES

"For several years my husband was a missionary in the Southwest, and we were living on the edge of the desert in an elevation of nearly five thousand feet. Every one in that high and dry atmosphere had more or less trouble with dandruff and my daughter's scalp became so encrusted with it that I was alarmed for fear she would lose all her hair, which was very heavy. After spending between five and six dollars for various remedies, in desperation I bought a cake of Cuticura Ointment. After rubbing the Cuticura Ointment thoroughly into the roots of the hair, I gently rubbed the scalp, and then gave her head thorough shampoo with the Cuticura Soap. This left the scalp beautifully clean and free from dandruff, and after the hair was dry, I again rubbed the Cuticura Ointment, this time sparingly, into the roots, and I am happy to say that the Cuticura Remedies were complete success. My troubles with dandruff were over, although for a long time afterward I used the Cuticura which kept the scalp and roots of the hair moist. I have used successfully the Cuticura Remedies for so-called 'milk-crust' on baby's head, and have often found them useful to equal them. For I do sincerely believe that the Cuticura Remedies are a blessing to mankind. Mrs. J. A. Darling, 310 Fifth St., Carthage, Ohio, Jan. 20, 1908."

Cuticura Ointment is one of the most successful cures for torturing, disfiguring humors of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded. In proof of this, the simple anointing with it, preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed when necessary, by a mild dose of Cuticura Resolvent (liquid or pills) is often sufficient to afford immediate relief of itching, burning and scaly humors, even when accompanied by inflammation, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all else fails.

Do not doubt the merit. Peter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., Boston, Mass. See Standard Free Circular Book on Skin Diseases.

Celestine, and Miss Nealy Mattingly, of Kirk, spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Mattingly.

Miss Esther Frank and brothers, Everett and Claude, of Evansville, are visiting their sister, Mrs. Chas. Ball. They are accompanied by Miss Blanche McClure. She is a charming young lady and has won many friends while here.

Misses Settle and Alice Pate entertained delightfully Thursday evening in honor of Misses Esther Frank and Blanche McClure, of Evansville. They were entertained Sunday evening by Miss Melissa Mattingly.

A Great Vote Getter.

Capt. M. C. Rankin, the popular Commissioner of Agriculture has been spoken of as a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. Capt. Rankin is prominently identified with the farming interests of the State, an active Society of Equity man and altogether would make a most dangerous man for the Democrats to go up against. He is probably not much of a politician and may not be able to land the nomination, but if nominated he would undoubtedly be a great vote getter.—Elizabethtown News.

MARGARET MAYO

"Anything you want?"

"Want?" She turned upon him with startled eyes. There was so much that she wanted that the mere mention of the word had opened a well of pain in her heart.

"I mean can I do anything for you?"

"Oh, of course not," she remembered how little any one could do.

"What is it, Poll?" he begged, but she only turned away and shook her head with a sigh. He followed her with anxious eyes. "What made you out out the show today? Was it because you didn't want to ride alone with that known you—ride alone him mebbe?"

"Him?" Her face was white. Jim forced she might swoon. "You don't mean that he was—"

"Oh, no," he answered quickly, "of course not. Parsons don't come to places like this one. I was just looking for you to tell him how you was ridin' it." She did not answer.

"Was that it, Poll?" he urged.

"I don't know," she stared into space. "Was it?"

"I guess it was," she said after a long time.

"I knowed it," he cried. "I was a fool to a-brung you back! You don't belong with us no more."

"Oh, don't, Jim! Don't! Don't make me feel I'm in the way!"

"Here too?" He looked at her in astonishment. "You wasn't in his way, was you, Poll?"

"Yes, Jim," she saw his look of unbelief and continued hurriedly: "Oh, I tried not to be! I tried so hard. He used to read me verses out of a Bible about my way being his way and my people his people, but it isn't so, Jim. Your way is the way you are born, and your people are the people you are born with, and you can't change it, Jim, no matter how hard you try."

"You was changin' it," he answered savagely. "You was gettin' 'er like them people. It was like you took you away an' spoiled it all. You oughtn't to a' come. What made you after you said you wouldn't?"

She did not answer. Strange things were going through the mind of the slow witted Jim. He braced himself for a difficult question.

"Will you answer me somethin' straight?" he asked.

"Why, of course," she said as she met his gaze.

"Do you love the parson, Poll?"

She started.

"Is that it?"

Her lids fluttered and closed; she caught her breath quickly, her lips apart, then looked far into the distance.

"Yes, Jim, I'm afraid that's it." The little figure dropped, and she stood before him with lowered eyes, unarmored. Jim looked at her helplessly, then shook his big, stupid head.

"Is that it?"

It seemed such a short time to Jim

THE GUILTY PARTY

By O. HENRY.

Copyright, 1908, by S. S. McClure Co.

RED haired, unshaven, untidy man sat in a rocking chair by a pipe and he had just lighted a pipe and was puffing blue clouds with great satisfaction. He had removed his shoes and donned a pair of blue, faded carpet slippers. With the morbid thirst of the confined daily news drinker, he awkwardly folded back the pages of an evening paper, eagerly gulping down the strong, black headlines, to be followed as a chaser by the milder details of the smaller type.

In an adjoining room a woman was cooking supper. Odors from strong bacon and boiling coffee contended against the cut plug fumes from the vesterline pipe.

Outside was one of those crowded streets of the east side in which at twilight falls Satan sets up his recruiting office. A mighty host of children danced and ran and played in the street. Above the playground hovered a great bird. The bird was known to humorists as the stork. But the people of "Christydom" were better ornithologists. They called it a vulture.

A little girl of twelve came up timidly to the man reading and resting by the window and said:

"Papa, won't you play a game of checkers with me if you aren't too tired?"

The red haired, unshaven, untidy man sitting shoeless by the window answered, with a frown:

"Checkers? No; I won't. Can't a man who's worked all day have a little rest when he comes home? Why don't you go out and play with the other kids on the sidewalk?"

The woman who was cooking came to the door.

"John," she said, "I don't like for Lizzie to play in the street. They learn too much there that ain't good for 'em. She's been in the house all day long. It seems that you might give up a little of your time to amuse her when you come home."

"Let her go out and play like the rest of 'em if she wants to be amused," said the red haired, unshaven, untidy man, "and don't bother me."

"You're on," said Kid Mullaly. "Fifty dollars to $25 I take Anne to the dance. Put up."

The Kid's black eyes were snapping with the fire of the baited and challenged. He drew out his "roll" and slapped five tens upon the bar. The four or four young men behind the "taken" more slowly produced their stake.

"And, oh, what'll be done to you'll be a plenty," said a bettor, with anticipatory sly.

"That's my lookout," said the Kid sternly. "Fill 'em up all around, Mike."

After the round Burke, the Kid's sponge, sponge holder, pal, mentor and grand vizier, drew him out to the boot-black stand at the saloon corner, where was the official and important matter of the Small Hours Social club were settled.

"Cut that blond out, Kid," was his advice. "For he'll be trouble. What do you want to throw down that girl of yours for? You'll never find one that'll freeze to you like Liz has. She's worth a half full of Anisles."

"I'm no Annie admirer!" said the Kid, dropping a cigarette ash on Tony's shoulder. "But I want to teach Liz a lesson. She thinks I belong to her. She's been bragging that I daren't speak to another girl. Liz is all right—in some ways, she's drinking and she's too much lately. And she uses language that a lady oughtn't."

"You're engaged, ain't you?" asked Burke.

"Sure. We'll get married next year."

"I saw you make her drink her first glass of beer," said Burke. "That was two years ago, when she used to come down to the corner of Chrystie barbed to meet you after supper. She was a quiet sort of a kid then and couldn't speak without blushing."

"She's a little spitfire sometime now," said the Kid. "I hate jealousy. That's why I'm going to the dance with Annie. I'll teach her some sense."

"Well, you better look a little out," were Burke's last words. "If Liz was my girl and I was to sneak out to a dance coupled up with an Annie I'd want a suit of chain armor on under my gladsome rags, all right."

Through the hall of the stork-vulture wandered Liz. Her black eyes searched the passing crowds feverishly, but vaguely. Now and then she hummed bars of foolish little songs.

Liz skirt was green silk. Her waist was a large brown and pink plaid, well fitting and not without style. She wore a cluster of rings of blue and red and a lock of hair banged her knees at the bottom of a silver chain. Her shoes were run down over twisted high heels and were straggled to polish. Her hat would scarcely have passed into a four barrel.

The "family entrance" of the Blue Jay's revealed her hat.

"Whisky, Tommy," she said as her sisters farther uptown murmur. "Champagne, James."

"Sure, Miss Lizzie! What'll the chaser be?"

"Seltzer. And, say, Tommy, has the Kid been around today?"

"Why, no, Miss Lizzie, I haven't saw him today."

"I'm lookin' for 'em," said Liz after the chaser had spurted under her nose. "It's got to me that he says he'll take Anne to the dance. Let him. The pink eyed white rat! I'm lookin' for 'em. You know me, Tommy. Two years me and the Kid've been engaged. Look at that dog. Five hundred he said it cost. Let him take her to the dance. What'll I do? I'll cut his heart out. Another whisky, Tommy."

"I wouldn't listen to no such reports. Miss Lizzie," said the writer snubbing from the narrow opening above his chin. "Kid Mullaly's not the guy to throw a lady like you down. Seltzer on the side?"

"Two years," repeated Liz, softening a little to sentiment under the magic of the distillers' art. "I always used to play out on the street of exultation's cause there was nothin' doin' for me at home. For a long time I just sat on doorsteps and looked at the lights and the people in the street. And then the Kid came along one evenin' and sized me up, and I was mashed on the spot for fair. The first drink he made me take I loved him. He said he'd make me a drink for makin' a noise. And now, Tommy, you ever see this Annie Karlson? If it wasn't for peroxide the chlorine film would have put her out long ago. Oh, I'm lookin' for 'em. You tell the Kid if he comes in. Me? I'll cut his heart out. Another whisky, Tommy."

And then, unexpectedly, with watchful and brilliant eyes, Liz walked up the avenue toward the Small Hours Social club.

At 9 o'clock the president, Kid Mullaly, paced upon the floor with a lady on his arm. As the Lorelei's was her hair golden. Her "yes" was softened to a "yawn" but its quality of exultation was patent to the most Milesian eyes. She stepped upon her own train and blushed, and she smiled into the eyes of the president.

And then as the two stood in the middle of the waxed floor the thing happened to prevent which many lamps are burning nightly in many studies and libraries.

Out from the circle of spectators in the hall leaped Pat in a green silk skirt under the non de guerre of Liz. Her eyes were hard and blacker than jet. She did not scream or waver. Most unconvincingly she cried out one oath, the Kid's own favorite oath, and in his own deep voice, and then while the Small Hours Social club went frantically to pieces she made good her boast to Tommy, the waiter—made good as far as the length of her knife blade and the strength of her arm permitted.

Liz ran out and down the street and cut and ran, two weeks flying through a grove of saplings at dusk.

And then followed the big city's biggest shame, landed down from a long car and into the street, the blue and ery. Nowhere but in the big cities does it survive, and here most of all, where the ultimate perfection of culture, civilization and alcohol superiority jaws bawling in the chime.

They pursued, a shrieking mob of fathers, mothers, lovers and maidens, crying, yelling, calling, whistling, crying for blood.

Knowing her way and hungry for her success, she darted down the familiar ways, until at last her foot struck the dull solidity of the rotting pier. And then it was but a few more panting steps, and good mother East river took Liz to her home.

It was midnight, but quickly, and settled in five minutes the problem that keeps lights burning at night in thousands of pastorate and colleges.

It's mighty funny what kind of dreams one has sometimes. Poets call them visions, but a vision is only a dream in blue or red or green. I dreamed the rest of this story.

I thought I was in the next world and there was a great crowd of us out there in courtship and the judgments were going on. And every now and then a very beautiful and imposing court officer would come out and order and call another case in a loud voice.

While I was considering my own wordy sins and wondering whether there would be any use of my trying to prove an alibi by claiming that I lived in New Jersey the balliff angel came to the door and sang out, "Case No. 99,852,743!"

Up stepped a plain clothes man—there were lots of 'em there, dressed exactly like preachers and bustling us spirits around just as cops do on earth—and by the arm he dragged—whom, do you think? Why, Liz!

The court officer took her inside and closed the door. I went up to Mr. Ply Cop and inquired about the case.

"A very odd one," says he, laying the points of his manicured fingers together—"an utterly incorrigible girl. I am a special terrestrial officer, the Rev. Jones. The case was assigned to me. The girl murdered her fiancé and committed suicide. She had no defense. My report to the court relates the facts of the case, all of which are substantiated by reliable witnesses. The vagabond of sin is dead. Praise the Lord!"

The court officer opened the door and stepped out.

"Poor girl," said Special Terrestrial Officer the Rev. Jones, with a tear in his eye. "It was one of the saddest cases that I ever met with. Of course she was—"

"Discharged," said the court officer. "Come here, Jonesy. First thing you know you'll be switched to the people's desk. How would you like to be on the missionary force in the south sea islands—hey? Now, you quit making these false arrests or you'll be transferred—see! The guilty party you've got to look for in this case is a red haired, unshaven, untidy man, sitting by the window reading in his stocking feet while his children play in the streets. Get a move on you!"

Now, wasn't that a silly dream?

Poultry Secrets Disclosed

THERE are secrets in the poultry business, in any other; the best methods and newest discoveries seldom reach the amateur poultry raiser and the general public for years after they are originated. A new method of absolutely insuring the fertility of setting eggs, for example, has

and its discovery is not to be blamed for keeping it to himself. Now, for the first time, the secrets of many of the most successful poultrymen are made public. No confidence has been violated, every secret has been

Obtained in an Honorable Way

(1) by outright purchase; (2) by free permission given the author, Michael K. Boyer, (3) by collecting old, valuable, but little known methods; (4) by Mr. Boyer's own experience covering 30 years. Since this book was first advertised four or five months ago, it has been necessary to print eight editions, and many new and valuable secrets have been added to the original book.
